In any case, no business has been managed so successfully as the old State Bank of Indiana. During its history, the bank has been the property of its stockholders, and it winds up returning to them not only the original capital invested, but a large surplus.

Scene of a FINEST.—A priest by the same name as the country doctor, and a relative of his boarding house by taking morphine. He was noticed last evening writing several letters, and was seen to post them. He did not return, but did not appear excited in any way. Being his usual custom to sleep late in the day, the inquiry is made whether he will appear. He does not make his appearance during the forenoon, but in the afternoon, about 4 o'clock, he appears, and is seen to be in the same state of mind.
